The Promising Career Paths → of RNs

Job stability is something that most, if not all Americans covet, which is why it's so important to note that health care is one of the fastest-growing as well as highest-paying industries in the nation. Nurses are at the forefront of this trend, as the nursing shortage is creating quite a demand for qualified candidates in this field. If you're thinking of going into nursing, you might want to consider going the registered nurse route.

The Current Job Market for RNs

By 2026, the field expects:

Workforce will increase from 2.9 million to 3.4 million

200,000 jobs will be created each year for new RNs

203,700 jobs a year will be needed to replace retiring nurses

Higher Education for Nursing

Bachelor of Science in Nursing

MSN Master of Science

in Nursing

Doctor of Nursing Practice

Average Salary (2019) $77,070

Average Salary (2019) $108,980

Average Salary (2019) $135,830

Top Specialities

Neonatal

Assist patients before and

Midwife

during pregnancy and delivery.

Graduate-level nurse certified

Critical Care Assist and monitor patients

Medical-Surgical - Care for patients before and after

Top Specialities Certified Nurse Midwife

Provide care to not only pregnant patients, but to the elderly as well.

Nurse Anesthetist (CRNA)* Helps anesthesiologist before

Certified Registered and during surgery, as well as administering local Family Nurse Practitioner Work to promote health and longevity to families within

Nurse Anesthetists (AANA) will require CRNAs to have DNPs by 2025.

Top Specialities

Chief Nurse Anesthetist In charge of supervising and coordinating all anesthetic procedures and protocols.

Clinical Research Director Works on health policy-making, promotes health campaigns, and evaluates the development of drugs.

Chief Nursing Officer

Highest ranking nurse position who oversees the entire nursing staff, delegates duties, and creates established policies to improve clinical care.

Tremendous job growth is expected for

Job Growth for RNs

registered nurses, with a 19 percent expansion expected by 2022. Several reasons for this exist, including an aging population, wider healthcare availability through the Affordable Care Act, and the fact that one-third of registered nurses currently working are nearing retirement.

expansion expected by 2022

19 percent

5 Oregon

Top Nursing Incomes By U.S. Geography

situation, consider working at an award-winning medical center like Eisenhower Health.

If you're looking at starting a career in nursing or advancing your current

View Our Available Positions at careers.eisenhowerhealth.org